Nothing is known here about any plan to transfer the EMW (Eisenach Motor Works) works at Eisenach to the Soviet Union. Report of such proposed transfer may have arisen from the fact that in June and July 1953 machinery was shipped out to the Soviet Union (mainly machines for tooling crankshafts). These machines however had already been taken out of production at the then BMW (Bavarian Motor Works) works at the beginning of 1951 and packed up. It is also known that the EMW works have been carefully surveyed and all the machinery entered on a plan.
